

Berkeley Castle Covid 19 - Tenant Update

#29 - September 28, 2020

When there is a second wave, and it's not to say hello.

Well, we are in the second wave.

I am asking all our tenants to remind, and even beg all their staff to download the COVID Alert notification app . It benefits everybody. We certainly hope this doesn't happen, but the app will be a critical resource if anyone comes into Berkeley Castle and later tests positive.

We are doing our best to monitor people who come and go in the building. We are asking everyone to sign in and asking people to self check before they come to work.

We also reminding you that every company keep their own records of which staff came to work each day, and have them complete a self check.

Please just be extra careful the next while. Keep a diary of where you've been each day. Rethink any backyard BBQ's and in particular your thanksgiving plans if you have older family members who could be in contact with school age children.

Additional face protection

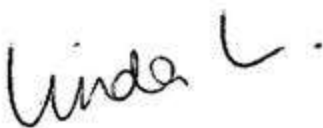

We know so much more about how to prevent the spread of this virus than we did 6 months ago. Face coverings are a key. We have all been wearing cloth face masks since June. But, with the numbers entering more dangerous ranges, I'm sure everyone wants to do the most they can to protect themselves.

I have personally decided that when I visit busier / riskier places, I'm going to start wearing a face shield in addition to my mask. I've even realized that I can wear a face shield while sitting at a restaurant eating.

I was at an event last month where all the volunteers wore face shields. They are made locally, and you can pick them up at their location on Danforth avenue, or have them shipped. The best thing about these shields, is that they can clip to a baseball cap, hard hat, sun hat, whatever. Lots of space between the peak of your cap for eye wear, or to lift a fork to your mouth. They are very reasonable, and they do offer a shield with head elastic, and one that includes the baseball cap. Their flyer is attached to this email, and here is their email: sales@clubink.ca

Starting next week, you will start seeing our staff wearing them when walking around the building.
